FOREWORD

The year of nineteen thirty-one and thirty-two has been unusually full of activities—lectures, concerts, athletic events, parties, banquets, and receptions. We have attempted to record them in this book so that in future years you may turn these pages with happy memories of your good old college days.

"It was so rich in many wise
That it was like a paradise."

"Go forth under the open sky, and list
To Nature's teachings."

"Anon, out of the earth a fabric huge Rose, like an exhalation."

And see the rivers how they run
Through woods and meads, in shade and sun,
Sometimes swift, sometimes slow,—
Wave succeeding wave, they go
A various journey to the deep,
Like human life to endless sleep!

"The summer air, the bright sun Shining and the sailing clouds aloft."

"What Nature has writ with her lusty wit
Is worded so wisely and kindly
That whoever has dipped in her manuscript
Must up and follow her blindly.

Now the summer prime is her blithest rhyme
In the being and in the seeming.
And they that have heard the overword
Know life's a dream worth dreaming."

ADMINISTRATION

THE ADMINISTRATION BUILDING

Built in 1929 and dedicated in 1930, the Library and Administration Building has become the center of the campus. It symbolizes the whole academic career of a Battle Creek College student. For it is in this building that we register when we arrive, and it is here that we receive our sheepskins when we leave. As we spend much of our time in the in-between years in the library, class rooms, auditorium, recreation room and the directors' offices located here, every student has more interests in this building than in any other on the campus.

THE AIMS AND IDEALS OF BATTLE CREEK COLLEGE

Said wise old Seneca, "Religion consists of two things: to seek truth and to do good."

This is our aim.

Our ideals contemplate a new program in education, based upon the following fundamental propositions:

1. Every human being is entitled to an opportunity for the fullest development and the most complete expression of the physical and mental potentialities which he has inherited from his ancestors.

2. Such an opportunity requires not only freedom from restraint or misdirection, but instruction and training in the fine art of biologic or physiologic living, not in relation to eating and drinking only, but in the broad sense which includes the technic of wholesome conduct in all human activities and relations.

3. The function of the school, the college, the university, of every educational agency, should be to give to each student such training of mind and body as will accomplish these ends and thus prepare him to enter upon life with a body free from disease and possessed of the knowledge and physical stamina required for protection against agencies and influences hostile to health, to live an efficient, happy and useful life, to attain maximum longevity, and to contribute to the development of a new, hardier, larger, nobler and in every way superior, race of man.

When Greece was at the zenith of its glory, a pinnacle of human development which no nation has since reached, she wrote over the doors of her temples of learning,

"Mens sana in corpore sano."

This golden motto must again become the goal of every educational project and the inspiration of every educational program.

These are the aims and ideals of Battle Creek College, in which it is a pioneer among educational institutions.

JOHN HARVEY KELLOGG.

A CALL FOR LEADERS!

Never before has there been such a need for educated leadership as there is today. We are in a world that is stocked with an abundance of everything that man might wish. Yet in the midst of abundance there is widespread want. This widespread want is resulting in the slow starvation of the bodies and in the smothering of the souls of millions of the poor.

Before the burdens of the lowly can be lifted, great wrongs will need to be righted; war reparations must be forgiven, tariff walls must be lowered, money must be stabilized, the savings of the people must be safeguarded, overcapitalized industries must be deflated, and the general public must secure a share in the profits or in the control of those industries which produce the necessities of life.

Only an educated leadership which understands the problems of a modern age and which is endued with the spirit of the Golden Rule, will be able to instruct the masses in the use of their political privileges, and to train up a group of men who will honestly administer power for the public good. May those who have here caught a vision of a better race, go out as builders of a new social order, where there shall be liberty, justice, and opportunity for all.

The Class of 1932

By Ellen Newman

Do we lose our pep because we have to use some of it now and then? No, not the Class of '32; we share it, but don't throw it away. As Freshmen, under the leadership of Ben Fry, we proved ourselves up and coming Frosh by having very important meetings as well as banquets and other functions. Then as Sophs, we waited for the Frosh of that year to get as excited as we had done, but we gave up waiting and, under the leadership of Larry Roth, got down to work ourselves and did all we could to better ourselves first, I'm afraid, and then the school. The third year we didn't wait for anyone else to get started. Winnie Bensley planned several things which we did with zest, earning quite a bit of money from such undertakings as sponsoring a movie, which money went to entertain the very noble Senior Class of '31. And after all of this were we worn out? We should say not! There was now more work to be done and this year we did it. A banquet for the election of officers and setting the ball a rolling was on October 25, at which we all had a very nice time. Then we opened up our hearts and gave an all-school old-timers party, which we were delighted to see was well attended. This party gave us more genuine pleasure than most any other thing we have attempted, because it entertained so many of our friends. Then we turned to more serious affairs and sponsored a convocation, at which the Mayor of Battle Creek spoke. In January we turned musical and brought the Olivet Orchestra to our college. Richard Gaw, a former B. C. student, gave an excellent program as piano soloist with the orchestra. Everyone attending felt that they had heard an extraordinary concert. Then! Then! In February came Horowitz! What a time S.G.A. and we had "putting this over," but we did it, and what a concert it turned out to be. We really feel quite proud of ourselves for bringing such a prominent musician to our school, and do earnestly hope that this type of entertainment may be continued and become a tradition to all Senior classes. We were then all worn out. What did we do? Why, we gave ourselves an entertainment. A formal party, one of the most unusual social affairs of the year, broke the monotony of too much work. Everything was very elegant from the dinner to the formals of the ladies, with one exception. We regretted that two of our speakers were forced to give the same toast, as Miss Case spoke after Miss Hall, we must blame her for not being original. We felt that we could entertain ourselves right royally ever after. And so back to work with the lecture by the poet, Mr. Davison. Another thrilled and excited audience left the auditorium this eventful evening, with a very uplifting subject for much future conversation. And now in April it was our turn to give another convocation, and this time the Senior P.E.'s, under the direction of Miss Cameron, gave "The Conflict," a health dancing pageant. This was such a new type of chapel presentation that it caught and kept the interest of everyone present, and proved to be the thing everyone had hoped would be presented. And again we grew restless from too much work, and this time gave an all-school party at the Elks' Temple, at which everyone had a grand time. Ask anyone who attended. And now that we are approaching our one grand week of Senior activities, with no lessons to prepare, due to the effort and coöperation of the faculty, we feel that we have not done half enough for our school. Please, under classmen, take it from those who have had experience, and do all you can for your class, school and faculty, and you will find yourselves most happy with no effort. And, believe us, if you do, you will hate to leave B. C. College as badly as we do, but you will also feel that you have done a little to further its ideals. Good luck to all who are to come. May you do more than we did and love it.

PERSONALS

Miss Gertrude Sabin, who will be remembered here, won the recent hog calling contest at the state fair at Clinton, Iowa, in competition with six men.

It is reported that Miss Elizabeth Stringer, who manages a girls' baseball team, was quite recently injured severely by a thrown pop bottle in a far western city. Catherine Swanson, who is a pitcher on the team, beaned the weilder of the pop bottle, so honors are even.

Senator Roland Burt recently electrified the Senate with his speech on Russian whiskers and their menace to America.

Wayne Rosenbaum, dramatic critic for the New York Blatt, says that the stage is decadent and shows aren't any good any more.

Martha Wilson says in an article in this month's Obliterary Digest that men are not to be trusted. A new thought, and one likely to be widely discussed.

Miss Gladys Beyer passed through here yesterday enroute from Hollywood to New York on business for Colossal pictures. Miss Beyer is now a "yes" woman to one of Colossal's leading directors.

Dr. Lawrence Roth, private physician to His Majesty Philip I, King of Philippines, writes the staff at the Sanitarium for help in a severe malady that his majesty has contracted. The king's brains run out of his ears, and Dr. Roth has been unable to check the hemorrhage.

The Samoian dancers appearing in Wonder Bros. recent South Sea spectacle, "She Went South," were none other than Ellen Newman, Julia Oviatt, Betty Tillipaugh and Edna Hiscock, former B. C. College girls.

Mae Hollingsworth, who is known as the "woman who never smiles," has gone to Chicago to resume her position with Bangham and Bailey's circus side show.

LOCAL BREVITIES

Miss Winifred Bensley finished her 48th hour on the flag pole in the Post block today.

Miss Dale McLeod, who is an expert lapidary with offices in New York, is now engaged in recutting one of the famous Russian crown gems known as the "Heavenly Jewel."

Miss Margaret Greenwald, is in the Belgian Congo looking for a rare and valuable bug known as the "bitula humanus."

Mr. Caryl Hoffman, chief chemist for the Du Font interests, is rumored to have discovered a substitute for Swiss cheese that cannot be told from the real thing.

Business Directory

Miss Christine Bennett opens a new research laboratory in the Old-National Tower. See advertisement on page 10.

Orange squeezing demonstration, Wednesday, 3 to 5, at the Wiggly Jiggly, Elva Hiscock.

Social and dramatic dancing. Chaperones and hostesses on hand at all times. Rates reasonable. Mildred McCary and Donna Harris.

Elite Photograph Gallery, 107 E. Michigan, 2nd floor. Wedding parties and funerals a specialty. Also groups. "We shoot you as you are." Lulu King, proprietor.—Adv.

SOCIETY

A very pretty affair held last evening was the announcement party for Miss Betty Brocker, at which time miniature automobiles were given each guest, in the driver's seat of which was a doll-like figure labeled Bob Whalen, made to resemble our peppy Chevrolet dealer.

One of the most unusually lovely showers of the season was that given last evening for Mrs. Martha Kaye in honor of her infant son, Oswald Nothestine Kaye. Congratulations on your beautiful baby, Mrs. Kaye.

MUSICAL

Richard Kellogg, our popular maestro, has just received an offer for his orchestra to play during the coming season at Mamie Olson's night club in Ceresco.

Paul Whiteman has offered Richard Struwin a place in his orchestra as piccolo player.

A beautiful silver jug was just awarded the most accomplished jug musician in the U. S. We congratulate you, Miss McLaughlin, and in response Miss McLaughlin answers that she owes all her success to her alma mater, B. C. College.

The most popular jazz writer of our time, Miss Lottie Lingo Johnson, will croon her newest hit over WELL Nov. 3. This new melody is "My Baby Left Me Last Night."

HYMENEAL

The marriage is announced of Miss Edna Bauer, our popular milliner, and Clint Cook, the efficient mail plane pilot on the Chicago-Detroit run.

Miss Lois Brinkman and Robert Wildenburg were married today in the Church Around the Corner in New York City.

Announcement was made Monday of the birth of a 10-pound boy to Mr. and Mrs. Ernie Currie, Mrs. Currie being the former Phylis Hostington. The babe was to be christened today Archie Brinkman Currie, and the lucky godmothers were to be Grace Jones and Louise McDaniel.

SPORTS

At the recent Olympic games held in Shanghai, China, Battle Creek alumnae won many points for the American team. Una Cassell won the pole vault at 15 feet 3 inches, Isabel Wood the 100-meter swim in 3⅖ seconds, Bernadine Lehman the shot put, throwing the ball a distance of 176 feet 3½ inches, and Lorene Shoemaker the running broad jump for a distance of 24 feet 6½ inches. Well done, girls.

We have just received astounding news that America's black sheep in athletics, Miss Myra Sculpholm, won the 100-yard dash in the Olympics last week. We cannot account for this unusual turn of events, unless Miss Sculpholm's new manager and trainer, Hard Boiled Heald, is a better trainer than we imagined.

DRAMATICS

In the latest offering of Zeigfield Follies a number of faces familiar to Battle Creek College appear in the chorus and pony ballet. There are Opal Fender, Madge Jewel, Lucille Roys, Isabel Betts and Catherine Flynn.

Miss Jessie Fischer has just finished a vaudeville engagement on the Orpheum Circuit and will now take a well deserved rest.

It is said that Marjorie Hall and Wayne Ackley, who are playing the male and female leads in the successful dramatic production, "Yeah," which has had a year on Broadway, were recently married in Jersey City.

FOREIGN

News comes from Calcutta, India, from Adabelle Brickley, foreign correspondent for the New York Times, that Ghandi's goat is dead and the people are afraid that Ghandi will starve.

Miss Charlotte Butler, a former B. C. C. girl, won a beauty contest at Kankakee, Ill., and gets a free trip to Hollywood and a movie contract.

All foreign papers are full of the recent engagement of Miss Martha Wilson, rich restaurant director from Boston, to the Prince of Wales. Did he fall for her money or her sophistication is the question of those who know her here. Her assistant, L. Wertz, is planning to take over the former's position after the wedding occurs.

The Jamieson-Perry clowns have met with immediate success in every capital in Europe on their recent tour.

Kellogg Hall

Kellogg Hall was once a rival institution to the Sanitarium, but it was not a financial success. When it was sold for debts, it fell into the hands of the Sanitarium, which presented it to the Race Betterment foundation. This organization, in turn, presented it to the College. This was formerly the residence of the graduating nurses.

Alma Mater

Oh, Alma Mater, glorious name,
With reverent hearts we raise
The song of youth and joyousness
Of all our golden days,
We sing the joy of living
On this our lovely earth,
A life of health and happiness,
A life of truest worth.

Oh, Alma Mater, haste the day
When we shall bring thee fame,
The fame of earnest work well done,
To crown thy glorious name.
So keep us strong and steadfast,
Our faces to the light;
Oh, Alma Mater, hear our song
And guide our lives aright.

Junior Class History

By Maurice McLean.

"Heaven is not gained by a single bound,
But we climb the ladder step by step."

The Junior Class has reached the third round of the ladder, and we have every reason to be satisfied with our membership, both in size and ability.

The Class of '33 is contributing a goodly quota of active leaders to the campus activities. Represented among the number is the business manager of the Cauldron, the editor of the Plastic Page, the captain of the basketball team, the members of the men's negative debate team, the captain of the tennis team, and one-half of the girls' debating team, musicians, actors, and athletes.

The officers elected for the Junior Class this year were: President, Jane Leach Smith; Vice-President, Olive Pelton; Secretary, Margaret McLaughlin; and Treasurer, Harold Norton. Dr. Grant is the class adviser.

The outstanding activities of the year were Moving-Up Day, the Junior Convocation held on May 31, at which Dr. Voelker was the main speaker, a May party for the school, a banquet for the class, and a party in honor of the Seniors.

A name for spirit and loyalty was created during the first year, and it has been the aim of each individual in the class to make history for the college.

Our Senior year is before us, and we earnestly hope that we may fulfill our duties in a manner that befits our rank and leave on the roll of Battle Creek College a proud record for the Class of 1933.

White and Blue

On with a song,
Ye nurses march on!
The campus rings with melodies
Of love that brings fond memories.
Our joy sounds on high.
Too soon school days fly.
To serve the world we'll turn from thee,
But thine fore'er our loyalty.

College and San
With heart and with hand,
Thy faithful children we would be,
Dear White and Blue, Hail! Hail! to thee.
Our voices we raise
In proud rounds of praise.
Where'er we go, Whate'er we do,
Oh, School of Nursing, we'll be true!

The Class of 1934

By Hazel Morris.

In the fall of the year nineteen hundred and thirty, "Meekness" personified appeared upon the Battle Creek College campus in the form of the Class of '34. With bows and smiles and "yes, ma'ams" and "no, sirs," we humbly acted the part of Freshmen, and with the most strenuous efforts we managed to maintain our Sunday-go-to-meeting manners throughout the year. Although the outward appearance of the members of '34 was so precise, the inward reactions were not so calm. It was not long before a constitution was established, and Maynard Russell, Ruby Merrill, Gretchen Van Roy and Carleton Treadwell were chosen as our leaders.

With Miss Kellogg as our adviser, we made some definite plans for the year. The foremost event of the year was the carnival given to the school by the Class of '34. The surroundings were unique—everything from a Paris cabaret to a Gypsy fortune-teller—and fun!—ask the apple dippers!

Shortly before school closed the class had its banquet at Postum club house. It was a charming evening—a delicious meal, inspiring speakers and good music! What more could we want?

And so the first year ended.

We have now moved up to the rank of Sophomores.

The officers for this year were Carleton Treadwell, Ethel Crooks, Mark Travis and Dorothy Caseman. Mrs. Ryan was our adviser.

Our social calendar has not been very full—shall we say due to the Wall Street crash? We have had several meetings and sponsored a chapel program which proved to be very popular.

North Lodge

Probably the most interesting feature in the history of North Lodge is the fact that at one time it served as an "underground railway" station for runaway slaves. It used to stand on the site of the present Library Building, and when the College bought this site from the Sanitarium, the building was included in the purchase. It was removed to its present site, remodelled and redecorated, and has been used since the fall of 1930 by the School of Home Economics.

Freshman Class History

By Oril Hunt.

We were wooed and won in 1931 by Battle Creek College.

It was fortunate that we had a week in which to explore like a cat in a strange garret, for it gave us a chance to band together in that spontaneous friendship which comes when strangers are thrown together far from home. We gazed on one another with mingled feelings. Some of these first impressions have been very lasting.

During September, we were entertained at Dr. Kellogg's home, and given a picnic at Sunshine Center. Dr. and Mrs. Voelker gave the class a reception at their home on the 22nd, 23rd and 24th of October. There followed the usual weeks of hazing (at least we were told they were usual, even "easy" in our case). Dog collars, braided locks, nursing bottles, short pants, green caps, paddlings, poetry, proposals, and dining room scenes pass as a bad dream. And then we had that nice nightmare called "J. P." night.

The Sophomores gave the P. E.'s a hard times party which served as one of the best oils for troubled waters. The Juniors gave them a dance in which everyone was dressed to represent a song, and the Freshmen gave a Hallowe'en dance to all Physical Education students.

An overnight party was given to the out-in-town Home Economics students, after which breakfast was served in the wide open spaces. During October, the Freshmen were given a party by the Sophomores at the Y. W. C. A. cottage at Gull Lake. The Sophomores gave the Freshmen a waffle supper at North Lodge. The Juniors gave their little sisters a banquet at the Sanitarium, and a theatre party was given for the big sisters during March.

The following boys were initiated into the Varsity Club: Ed Kaye, Wayne Forsythe, William Burke, and Lear Kaye.

The Freshmen leap year party gave the girls a chance to stand in the fellows' shoes for awhile, but what a time they had getting enough shoes to go around! It was held at the Y. W. C. A., with the Rainbow Ramblers furnishing the music.

We have just pretended to be upset over the sweater struggles and banner frays of Bull Dog Day.

At class elections, Iris Andrews was chosen president; Wayne Forsythe, vice-president; Oril Hunt, secretary; and Charles Walters, treasurer. We were fortunate enough to secure Mr. Fiting as our class adviser.

Most of us have made ourselves a part of this institution because it was the choice of our hearts. Some of us, like a few young married couples, didn't have anything else to do. At any rate, we are here until a divorce or an honorable B.S. doth us part.

In December the Student Government Association sent Betty Stout to Toledo to the National Student Federation Conference. She found the conference very worthwhile and brought back many new ideas that could be used to advantage on our campus. Many of these have been incorporated into new policies which it is thought will aid the students in their attempt at self-government.

At the end of the first semester a motion was started, proposed by the S. G. A. Council and passed by the whole association, making the purchasing of a Cauldron compulsory at the time of registration. Heretofore, because of the inability to judge the number of sales of Cauldrons in June, many financial difficulties were encountered.

One of the greatest things that S. G. A. has done this year was to bring Vladimir Horowitz to the college, coöperating with the Senior Class. This undertaking proved to be a great success.

Among the new policies that S. G. A. has formulated is the establishment of the honor system. Each office on the campus is rated a certain number of points, depending on the time it requires from the person holding the office. No person may hold more than seven points at one time.

A motion for a Board of Publications, which shall elect the editors of the Cauldron and Plastic Page and determine the policies of the publications, is under discussion.

An assistant treasurer is also to be added to the S. G. A. Council, who shall succeed as treasurer the following year.

S. G. A. promises at all times to support a college forum.

The executive council hopes to plan the social calendar for the following year by charting all the dates that are annual social events of the various organizations. It is hoped this will prevent the many conflicts in dates.

It is hoped that S. G. A. can do all in its power to aid in making Freshman Week a success. We are hoping to plan social events for the entire week and to have some of the members present to greet the incoming Freshmen.

The S. G. A. is also endeavoring to build up a school spirit along athletic lines.

Other policies being inaugurated are the election of a college cheer leader by the S. G. A., the appointment of an editor for the Handbook, and the approving of the constitutions of all new clubs before definite organization.

All new officers are to be elected one month before the end of the second semester. These officers are to take charge of the rest of the meetings for the year. All old officers are to hand down to the new officers a written report of what they have accomplished.

The S. G. A. at their discretion plan to take over the debts of all campus clubs finding themselves insolvent until such a time as they feel themselves capable of paying their just debts.

We sincerely hope that our efforts this year have in some manner been of benefit to the students and the college.

It is hoped that S. G. A. may at all times carry out its policies and continually strive to be a fair representative of student opinion.

Mr. Fiting, Wells, Priest.
Bowman, Rosenbaum, McLean, Vaxter.

The Plastic Page Staff

1931-32 marks the eighth year of the existence of the Plastic Page. In keeping with the expanding program of the college, it was increased from a four-column to a five-column paper. A new system was organized whereby the journalism class, under the direction of C. J. Fiting, took over the publication of the paper.

With Maurice McLean as editor-in-chief, a most successful year was enjoyed. Great credit must be given to the efficient staff, chosen from the various schools on the campus, who, in keeping with the rules of good journalism, presented the material accurately and impartially. The students greatly assisted the staff by the interest which they took in the paper.

The Plastic Page, in representing the voice of the student body, has come to fill a need in the school. Feature articles were found to be very much in popular acceptance with the students and were given a large place in the paper.

THE CAULDRON STAFF

How often have we heard that query, "When will the Cauldron be out?"" . . . And here it is!

We members of the staff have found it a very interesting task, this making of a year-book. After S. G. A. elections last fall, we started off with a great deal of enthusiasm, and it seems not to have worn off even yet. With the aid of our editorial adviser, Dr. Henry, staff appointments were made, and each member has fulfilled his duty very faithfully.

Myra couldn't have been more efficient as an associate editor. In fact, she often asked, "Haven't you any more work for me to do?"

The whole financial management rested on Clinton Cook's shoulders. Connie Treadwell gave his assistance as circulation man, and with the prevailing depression both men have had their worries. Local business men are so hard pressed that getting the "ads" for this book meant some hard work in most cases!

As our photography editor, Dale McLeod couldn't have been better. She accepted the entire responsibility of having all the camera work done, and you can see for yourself that Dale does what she sets out to do.

The "snaps" in this book were collected, captioned, and mounted by none other than Herm Heald himself, and don't you think that he did a good job?

Frank Jones and Mary Payne worked together in compiling the Organizations section. That took time and persistence, but, you see, it's here!

We delegated the duty of composing the feature write-ups to Mutt Wells, a busy man, but dependable.

Wayne Ackley had charge of the Men's Athletic section, while Lois Brinkman held a similar responsibility for the Women's Athletic section. Of course, both subdivided their duties, but witness their success for yourself.

When Betty Stout was appointed Class Editor, that meant that there was going to be a good section for classes, and Betty never disappoints anybody!

We held regular staff meetings every Wednesday night until we had the Cauldron well under way. Mr. Fiting, our technical adviser, gave us many valuable suggestions in general management and make-up.

Dr. West, financial adviser, was the loyal counsel for Business Manager Cook.

Taking it all into consideration, publishing this 1932 Cauldron has involved a great many people besides the staff and faculty advisers. It took the coöperation of two photographers, the engravers, the printers, and the binders.

Here, then, is our 1932 annual, and may the staffs of future Cauldrons be able to put out bigger and better ones for their Alma Mater.

Did you know that Eta Chi Sigma, our active honorary fraternity, is only five years old? Dr. Xan started the ball rolling and now Dr. West is the adviser.

One thing we'll never forget was when we all turned our clocks back and entered a baby contest at the hard times party. Don't you remember adorable litle Carleton Treadwell prattling in his high chair, Chubby Mabel Perry and that look on Dr. Henry's face when his twins received the prize? The laughter made that old recreation room rock with merriment!

Then later in the fall we began to furnish our room in Kellogg Hall. Now beautiful blue drapes and a good looking chair are ours, and we're as happy as kings about them. It's a good start, anyway.

In April we had a heap of fun putting on a convocation program. Weren't you surprised that Larry Roth could clog like that? We found out what a gossip Betty Stout is, too!

Another commendable project was the cleanliness campaign, headed by Mabel Perry, soap seller.

Now don't think that we are always clowns in the club, because qualifications for membership are really serious. You must have high scholastic and moral standing and an earnestness to live up to the college ideals. Under Louise McDaniels' able leadership, we have had regular meetings and very interesting discussions. We try to keep our aim before us, "To further race betterment and scientific living."

Here's to Eta Chi Sigma, and may she have a long and useful life!

CAMPUS PLAYERS

Campus Players began the new year in a burst of enthusiasm. Officers elected under the new regime were: Lucy Eggleston, president; Esther Wood, vice-president; Jeanette Bensinger, secretary; and Clinton Cook, treasurer.

Heretofore the Players have based their choice of new members on try-outs, but this year a new method was used very successfully. Those interested in dramatics were invited to become pledges, and after a term in which they showed ability on the stage or in some stage activity, they were initiated. The initiation banquet, a silent meal, was held at the Fiddle 'n Bow, February 16th. The Campus Players take pleasure in announcing the new members: Floy Clarke, Doris McLaughlin, Horace Bennett, Lear Kaye, Louelva Hoopes, William Blackler, Margaret Woolcock. Helen Brown, Helen Curtis, Glen Heckler, Helen McLaughlin, Mary Payne, Dorothy Sackett, Dorothy Brown, Margot Dickens, and Parker Briggs.

Under the very capable and inspirational direction of Mr. Sherman Willson, "Boomerang" was presented in a manner that elicited enthusiasm.

The redecoration of the club rooms and the preservation of their sanctity have been activities symbolical of the new spirit of the club.

Ella Eaton Kellogg Club

"E. E. K. club spirit never dead" was again proven when the 1932 program made a niche for itself in the school life.

The outstanding feature of the year was the county fair. Doughnuts and cider were served in the good old fashioned style, along with the minstrel, the mighty strong man, and many other stunts. The floor was decorated with cornstalks, and one end of the room was turned into a barnyard to accommodate "Farmer Jones'" fancy colored chicks and "Farmer West's" goat.

Just as the monks of the monasteries in the middle ages lived in accordance with the Benedictine rules, so the E. E. K. pledges live in accordance with the "Stoutine" rules. Initiations are parties which are uncommonly uncomfortable — physically and financially. But — who wants to discontinue them?

"Lest we forget" sandwiches with a soul. Take three cups cheese, pint of sweet vanishing cream, one dozen semi-heavy corks for lightness. Spread thinly on bread and serve piping hot—by means of a dumb waiter. This recipe may be obtained through the courtesy of Mabel and Laurence Perry.

What the E. E. K. Club has meant to some people:

Marge Hall—Next to Wayne.

Betty Stout—Lots of work.

Ilah Case—Two years of joy.

Eleanor Smith—One big question mark.

Betty Stringer—The work of an officer without the office.

Adabelle Brickley—Food! Food! Food!

Helen West—The harboring place of cruel Seniors.

But the club has not only been concerned with having a good time. In the meetings we have tried to use real, vital subjects which will be of interest to the girls. Much credit is due the executive committee for the success of the year's work.

Physalia

President - - - - - - F. Cleon Goble
Vice-President - - - - - James Forsyth
Secretary - - - - - - - George Clark
Treasurer - - - - - - Richard Kellogg

Six years ago Physalia was formed as an honorary society by a group of seven biology students. At the present time there are eleven members on the campus and a considerable number in medical and graduate schools. To become eligible for membership a high scholastic record and an active interest in biological sciences are required. The success of the organization in a large measure is due to the efforts of Dr. Luther S. West and Dr. Carroll W. Grant.

During the past year Physalia has sponsored a series of public scientific lectures given by Dr. L. S. West, Dr. C. W. Grant, Dr. Johann Rorich, Dr. W. R. Cheynowth and others. The society has also undertaken several other scientific projects with the view to stimulate scientific interests among the students of the department.

The local membership during 1931-32 is as follows: Dr. Luther S. West, faculty adviser; Dr. Carroll W. Grant, Ephriam Boldyreff and Rence Kolvoord, alumni members; Stuart Brown, George Clark, James Forsyth, F. Cleon Goble, Richard Kellogg, Francisco Munoz and Carleton Treadwell, active members.

Ackley, Brigham, Foster, Goble, Travis.
Bayley, Mr. Ryan, Treadwell, Hoffman.

CHI ALPHA GAMMA • • •

Among every group of students there are those who either possess scientific inclinations or are interested in such subjects. Consequently, Chi Alpha Gamma is organized to extend and cultivate the scientific interests of those male students of Battle Creek College who are deemed desirable by the fraternity. Semi-monthly meetings are held, at which programs are presented and discussions of a general scientific nature are held. Frequently, an outside speaker is engaged to enlighten the organization upon certain topics pertinent to his vocation. In recognition of the continual vacuity of the average student's pocketbook, the fraternity collects no fixed dues, but levies equal assessments upon all members whenever necessary expenses occur. One or more faculty members are included in the membership, not only to facilitate the maintenance of both dignity and decorum at the meetings, but to impart interest and authority to the discussions and programs.

DISCABOLIS

The Discabolis Club, organized just three years ago, has as its purpose the promotion of professional interest in physical education among those majoring in that work. The active members are the faculty and all students enrolled in the School of Physical Education, while the alumnae are associate members. Miss Jessie Cameron is faculty adviser of the group.

This year the traditional Color Dance, a costume affair, was held in the recreation room. In February, Miss Denniston spoke to the members on "Physical Education for Elementary Schools."

Discabolis and W.A.A. share club rooms in Turner Cottage.

Blue Key

The Blue Key Fraternity is a campus honorary society, the purpose of which is to serve in those capacities which will promote a better understanding between the student body, Battle Creek College, and the public. The members of this organization serve quite frequently as ushers at certain campus functions, although this is not the prime purpose of the group. The past year has been the second year of the existence of the Blue Key, and it promises to grow in prestige and functional ability, but not in numbers, by the way. The membership of the Blue Key is limited to fourteen, seven men and seven women, making it very convenient. In case of an argument, or any discussion between the sexes, the women have no advantage, because there is an equal number of men, and some of them have their share of argumentative ability, for better or for worse. Really, though, it's quite the fraternity. This year it was necessary to accept five new members, three men and two women, in order to keep the membership intact. Yes, and when there's a party, there's a girl for every man and a man for every girl. Well, theoretically there is. The Blue Key has had four parties and everyone has been happily mated. Most of the girls are good-looking (with apologies to Sherman), and the fellows aren't either. Now that the Seniors are gone, there seems to be less hope than ever. But the fraternity will struggle on just the same, and if ever you want any ushering done, call on the Blue Key. They might usher you to a seat in the House of Commons.

Julia Oviatt, President; Martha Wilson, Vice-President; Mary Novenski, Treasurer; Esther Rice, Secretary; Grace Jones, Winter Sports Manager.

The Women's Athletic Association

All women of the college who have an average scholastic standing of C, and make a class team or hike a hundred miles, are eligible for membership in the Women's Athletic Association. In order to participate in any athletic event of the college, a woman must be a member of this organization.

In the course of the year, several banquets have been given, and the Collegiate Vogue, a traditional affair sponsored annually by W.A.A., proved to be especially delightful this year. The new club rooms in Turner Cottage have been the scene of much activity ever since their completion.

Forty pledges were taken into the organization this season.

Miss Agnes Andersen is the faculty adviser to the group.

L. Kaye, O'Connell, E. Kaye, Burke.
Kelleher, Grantham, Morrison, Forsyth, E. Heald, Wildenberg.
H. Heald, Jackson, Coach Vindal, Lugers, Rosenbaum.

THE VARSITY CLUB

The Varsity Club is an organization composed of all the athletes who have won a major letter either in basketball, tennis, swimming, or golf. It aims to promote good fellowship on the campus, encourage high scholastic standing among its members, and uphold the ideals of the college.

The year 1931-32 was one of the most successful the club has enjoyed since it was organized five years ago. During the fall months the club rooms in Turner Hall were redecorated and refurnished, so that now they are among the most attractive on the campus. The club also sponsored the fall formal dance, which was a huge success and enjoyed by a large crowd.

During the winter months several parties were staged, as well as the annual initiation banquet, in which the new pledges to the club were formally introduced into the organization. Following the beginning of the new semester in February, the constitution of the club was completely reorganized, so that now its officers are elected bi-annually instead of annually, a change which the members are hoping will make for smoother and more efficient government.

The activities of the year will be climaxed with the presentation of the Annual Spring Formal, the outstanding social event of the college.

Women's Debate Team

The question debated by the Women's Debate Team this year was, "Resolved, that the United States shall offer to participate in the cancellation of all reparations and allied war debts."

The original squad consisted of five girls, but Margaret Woolcock and Betty Stout made up the final team, debating both for the negative and the affirmative.

During the season the debaters held several practice debates, exchanging with Albion College and acting as hostesses to the Adrian and Detroit City College teams.

The four decision debates were with Olivet College, Hope College, Western State Teachers' College, and Central State Teachers' College.

Mr. Sherman Willson coached the debaters.

Norton, Burt, Orvis, McLean, Mr. Fiting.

Men's Debate Team

Another capable men's debating team was produced by Battle Creek College this year. Since the college is a member of the Michigan Debating and Oratorical League, most of the discussions were limited to the question, "Resolved, That the United States adopt a substitute for the capitalistic system of government." The schools which were met in forensic contests included Calvin College, Albion College, Michigan State Normal at Ypsilanti, Western State Teachers' College of Kalamazoo, Central State Teachers' College of Mount Pleasant, Michigan State College, Hillsdale College, and Detroit Institute of Technology.

In men's oratory Roland Burt, also of the debate squad, entered the state oratory finals. He also won second place at the state extemporaneous speaking contest held at Lansing.

Mr. Clarence J. Fiting and Dr. David D. Henry, both of the English department, had charge of these activities.

The Women's Glee Club was organized at the beginning of the second semester, under the direction of Mr. Clifford Baer, of the Willand School of Music. A group of women who sang in last year's glee club formed the nucleus around which this organization was built.

At the suggestion of Mr. Baer, the club decided to devote their efforts to the study of some of the earlier forms of choral music. The history of choral music is a very interesting one. It began with the round, a song based on a simple chord and sung over and over again. Then came the ballad composed by the minstrels who went about from palace to palace singing songs under the windows of kings and queens whom they wished to please. After this came folk songs, which are "the heart-beats of the folk and in them are personal feelings, beliefs and habits of most antiquity." The development goes on, with the madrigal a composition for from three to six parts, the opera, and lastly our modern chamber music, the lyric and dramatic songs of the present day.

Rehearsals were somewhat irregular, due ot the fact that the school schedule for the year had been so firmly established. In spite of this element, the club enjoyed working together and found the course, as outlined above, both inspirational and educational.

The Men's Glee Club was very active throughoutt he year. Twelve concerts were presented, among which was a radio broadcast from Station WELL of the Battle Creek Enquirer and Evening News, trips to the Baseline Methodist Church and to Climax. The club participated in the college Christmas pageant and also in two performances at the Bijou Theatre with Miss Cameron's dancing class.

The coöperation of each member made a successful season, and all are very much indebted to Dr. West for his time and endeavor toward that end.

VOLITAN

The Volitan Club is an honorary swimming society formed for the purpose of stimulating an interest in aquatic sports. Requirements for entrance into the organization are high scholastic standing and proficiency in the following activities: Three standard dives, back and front crawl strokes for speed, and all swimming strokes for form.

The club sponsored an interclass swimming meet in December in which the Freshmen took first place and the Seniors ranked second. A swimming "play day" with Michigan State College is being planned for this spring.

DANCE CLUB

Eight years ago Miss Jessie B. Cameron organized a group interested in dancing as an art, as an emotional outlet, and as a means of satisfying the creative instinct, and called it The Dance Club. Since that time each succeeding group has attempted to carry out the original aims and ideals of the club. Realizing that one of the most fundamental needs of the girl of today is a way to express her emotional reactions to life, this organization aims to fulfill such a need by the creation of dance forms which are both artistic and expressive, social and creative, and which, because they are grounded on definite principles and directed toward a carefully conceived goal, are truly educational.

Election to membership in Sigma Sigma Psi is the highest honor granted to any member of the graduating class from the School of Physical Education. Sigma Sigma Psi is a national honorary sorority, another chapter being located at Stillwater, Oklahoma.

The pledges must have maintained high scholastic averages in both theoretical and practical courses; their loyalty to the school must be unquestioned; their conduct above reproach; and their personality outstanding.

Dean Linda Gage Roth, an honorary member, has made it a tradition to entertain the candidates at her home for the pledging.

Varsity Sports Review

The year 1932 brought many interesting additions to our athletic activities. In basketball, a Varsity and Junior Varsity team was competing under extensive schedules. The Varsity team competed in the strong Michigan-Ontario Conference, and made a favorable showing. The Junior Varsity team competed in the Recreation League, winning 30 out of 35 games.

The tennis team is an even better balanced unit this year than it was last, due to the fact that we did not lose any of our Varsity men and have received some valuable new material. Our early success leads us to believe that we will again have a championship team capable of winning the conference trophy.

Golf has been reorganized this year, and a fine schedule of twelve games has been arranged.

A swimming team has made its first appearance on the college sports calendar. Many men have tried out for this sport, and a well balanced team was developed. We entered the Michigan-Ontario Conference meet, at which we placed the greatest number of first places, losing the championship only through a technicality of the rules.

My contact with the men this year leads me to believe that they are contributing a wholesome and desirable attitude towards athletics. Let us hope hat we can blaze a vicorious trail in our athletic endeavors and that the great majority of the men may have a part in it.

Hugo K. M. Vindal,
Athletic Coach.

Neufelt, Burke, Forsyth, Huber, O'Connell, Grantham, C. Cook.
L. Kaye, T. Cook, Lugers, Johnson.

The Junior Varsity

The Junior Varsity, managed by Mr. David Neufelt, was organized for the purpose of building material up to Varsity calibre and to give playing experience to a greater number of players. This squad was not organized in vain, for the Varsity received a valuable man in Lear Kaye, who was transferred from the Jayvees in the middle of the season and who succeeded in winning the coveted B. C. Wayne Forsyth, member of this reserve squad, is a very promising candidate for the Varsity next year. The Jayvees were entered in City Recreation basketball and, led by Ted Cook, winner of the Kaler trophy cup in 1930, and who was ineligible for Varsity competition through graduation, won the second half championship of Class C and were victors in the Class B tournament.

Numerals were awarded to Captain Lugers, Harold Johnson, Mel Grantham, Bob Huber, Morton O'Connell, Wayne Forsyth and Ted Cook. Lugers turned in a very creditable season's record, especially on the defense. O'Connell, who played a stellar game at center, was among the leaders in the Recreation league scoring.

REVIEW OF SEASON

Captain Kelleher has shown for the second time that spirit which has been the winning factor in more than one ball game. His season record is a very creditable one. Season record: Games played, 15; field goals, 67; free throws, 26. Total points scored, 160.

The basketball season of 1931-32, which was not packed with victories, was nevertheless a successful one. The Bobcats, under the careful coaching of Hugo K. M. Vindal, finished the season with a record of six victories and fourteen defeats. A great number of these defeats were of the hard luck source. The kind where the outcome is of no certainty until the final whistle blows.

Coach Vindal built his quintet around a nucleus of three letter men—Kelleher. Morrison and H. Heald. A great deal of valuable material was uncovered in the ranks of the Freshmen. Two men, Ed. Kaye and Lear Kaye, out of this class won the coveted B. C. Other members of the 1932 squad who were awarded letters were Captain Kelleher, Morrison, and Heald. Everything points to a very successful season for 1932-33, with all five of these men back, in addition to the members of the strong Junior Varsity, none of whom will be lost to next year's squad, with the exception of Ted Cook, who would be ineligible for Varsity competition.

Battle Creek opened the 1931-32 basketball season in a very uncharacteristic manner for Battle Creek basketball teams by defeating St. Johns' of Toledo, 25-19. Morrison and Heald showed up very good on the defense, limiting the Saints to five baskets. The brunt of the scoring attack was carried by Kelleher and Stowell.

Concordia, with the advantage of a home floor, failed to stop the Bobcats, being the victims of a 28-21 score. Both teams played on even terms until the last two minutes of the game. At this point Johnny Kelleher broke loose and scored three baskets, furnishing the margin of victory. This scoring spree enabled him to carry off high point honors for the evening. Zorman and Schieps played a very creditable game for the Hoosiers.

KALER TROPHY CUP
Awarded to John Kelleher for the second time as the most valuable player.

Battle Creek was not quite so successful in their next out-of-town game, falling by the wayside 35-18 at the hands of a powerful Detroit Tech quintet. The absence of Kelleher was keenly felt, and the offense was not much better than the defense. Poser, All-Conference center, was the chief offender, collecting 15 points. Ed Kaye played the best ball for the Bobcats, making good on five out of seven gift shots.

In the next home attraction Battle Creek overcame a first half lead, defeating Concordia 25-18. Both teams played a very poor brand of basketball for the first half, but in the second period Battle Creek's defense, as well as the defense, started to function, outscoring the Hoosiers 18-6. Kelleher again carried away scoring honors with four baskets and two charity shots.

In the next home struggle St. Mary's had little consideration for Battle Creek's defense, piling up 41 points while the Vindalmen were collecting 27. The first half was a real struggle, both teams fighting hard for the advantage. The period ended with the score tied, each team having scored 13 points. But a determined rally by the visiting five at the first part of the second half left little doubt in the minds of the spectators or the players how the game would end.

General Motor's Tech were the next invaders of the Union court, and carried home a 28-19 victory. A strong first half attack enabled the Motor City quintet to obtain a 17-7 lead at half-time. Battle Creek played them on even terms the last period, but the damage had already been done. Johnson and Stowell looked the best for the Food City five, collecting 12 of the 19 points.

A week of rest greatly improved the Vindalmen, but not sufficiently enough to overcome the Adrian jinx which seemed in part to be responsible for the 29-24 defeat. After a rather slow first half, which gave Battle Creek an 8-6 advantage, both teams opened up with powerful offenses. But the superior height of the Adrian five in Nims, who counted for 12 of his teammates points, and Woerner were the deciding factors. Kelleher and Johnson played the best offensive game, while the work of Morrison and Heald stood out on the defense.

The following Saturday the Bobcats journeyed to Orchard Lake, where they were handed a decisive 47-17 defeat by the powerful scoring machine of the St. Mary's five. The Battle Creek quintet played a very creditable first half, holding the Saints to a 16-10 score, but weakened under the withering second half attack. Lear Kaye, playing his first Varsity game, turned in a very good showing for the evening performance.

The next Tuesday, Battle Creek journeyed to Grand Rapids, where they played everything but basketball. Davenport McLachin were easy victors in the 36-28 contest. Everyone seemed to be off form and played very listless basketball.

Battle Creek, trying to find victory on a foreign court, met General Motors, only to be turned back, 24-17, after a seeming sure victory. Let by Herman Heald, who played an outstanding game on both the offense and defence, the Vindalmen piled up a 13-5 lead at half-time. But the second the second half was a reversal of the first half, the Flint five outscoring Battle Creek 19-4.

Although Albion had won only one game, they were too good for the Battle Creek five, proving the fact by scoring a 34-27 victory. The game was featured by rough play. Twenty-six personal and three technical fouls were called before the final gun sounded.

After seven straight defeats, Battle Creek defeated St. John's 38-32 in a wild and hectic game. Battle Creek took the lead at half, 26-17 Then their defense and offense faltered for a time, allowing the Toledo team to take a 32-28 lead, but successive baskets by Kelleher and Stowell soon gave the Bobcats a six-point lead and victory. Flynn starred for St. John's, while Kelleher and Stowell led the scoring attack for Battle Creek, each gathering 16 points.

Ferris Institute showed that they had little regard for visitors by holding the Battle Creek offense to three baskets and five charity shots, and in the meanwhile filtered through their defense at will to score an impressive 33-11 victory.

In the next home attraction, Battle Creek went down to defeat 31-23 in a rough-and-tumble game in which Albion had the least number of fouls called against them. Chapman and Risley were the main cogs in the scoring machine for Albion. Kelleher claimed this honor for the Blue and White. Davies and Phinisey made their first appearance in this game.

Battle Creek had no better luck with Assumption, losing 25-17 to the Canadians. Failure of the Bobcats to cash in on their free throws was the deciding factor of the game. Phinisey led the scoring attack for the Vindalmen, while Morrison and Heald looked best on the defense.

Detroit Tech had no trouble in defeating Battle Creek 44-31 in the next home game. The game was very loosely played and many fouls were called during the contest. Kelleher was the outstanding star of the evening, collecting 14 points and playing a good defensive game.

LEAR KAYE
Forward, '35

Battle Creek displayed the same sort of play which they had exhibited in several of their contests in losing to Davenport McLachin 32-26 on the Union court. Leading at the half 14-13, the Bobcats presented a very weak defense, allowing the Business College quintet 19 points while counting for only 12.

The next game was without a doubt the most exciting game of the season that was played on the Union floor, Battle Creek finally emerging with a 34-31 advantage over Assumption. The score was tied at 17-17 at the end of the first period. The second half was a see-saw affair, the score being tied with three minutes of play left. In the closing minutes Phinisey and Kelleher scored in rapid succession, giving victory to the Bobcats after five straight defeats. Kelleher was high point man with six baskets, and Morrison, who is considered a strictly defense man, upset the dope and caged five buckets to run a close second. Allision played a very fine game on both the offense and defense for the victors.

The next game of the season was played at Southwestern gym with Ferris Institute. Battle Creek presented a revamped five (with Lear, Kaye and Max Phinisey as regular forwards), which held the Big Rapids quintet to a 34-25 count. The score was knotted at 16-16 at the end of the first half, but in the second half Battle Creek cagers had a lot of trouble with their shots and slowly fell behind. Lear Kaye, Phinisey and Kelleher starred on the offense, and Morrison and Heald performed best on the defense.

This new spirit which seemd to have entered the Vindalmen in their last encounter was great enough to roll up an impressive 33-22 count over the strong Adrian five. Trailing at the half 17-11, the Bobcats lost no time as the second period started, and, led by Kelleher, accounted for 22 points, while the defense, headed by Heald and Morrison, had little difficulty in restricting the visitors to two baskets and a gift shot.

Although victories were not plentiful during the season, nevertheless we can say that it was a truly successful one. One which started with victory and ended with victory. With the abundance of material which will be with us next year, we are looking for Coach Vindal to do great things.

Tennis

The Campus Book Store Tennis Trophy is awarded each year to the winner of the Annual Tennis Tournament.

The 1932 tennis season has thus far been very successful. The local racketeers have already won seven meets and have lost only one. This year's team was entirely of veterans, with the exception of Bill Burke, who has been playing No. 4 man this year. The playing order for this year has been: Eugene Heald, No. 1; Herman Heald, No. 2; Bob Wilderburg, No. 3; Bill Burke, No. 4; Grantham, Bennett and Rosenbaum have alternated at No. 5.

Battle Creek opened the tennis season April 15 by decisively defeating Grand Rapids, 6-1. The Bobcats won both double matches and all but one of the singles.

The following week Albion invaded the local courts and were turned back by a score of 6-1. The play of Eugene Heald, who defeated Homer Shoop in love sets, was the outstanding performance of the afternoon.

Battle Creek chalked up their third straight victory at the expense of Kalamazoo, 5-2, losing one single and one double match. Ray Gibson, of Kalamazoo, displayed a fine brand of tennis to beat E. Heaid, 6-3, 6-0. Bennett, making his first appearance of the season, won his match in straight sets. Wildenburg and Burke, playing a fine game of tennis, had no difficulty in scoring their points, both in singles and doubles.

The following Friday Battle Creek had quite a bit of trouble defeating Valparaiso, 6-3. The outcome of the match hinged on the doubles, in which the Bobcats made a clean sweep. The doubles teams were E. Heald and H. Heald, Wildenburg and Bennett, and Burke and Grantham.

Kalamazoo upset the dope and defeated the Bobcats for their first defeat of the season, 5-2. Herman Heald was the only man to win a single match. H. Heald and E. Heald scored the other point by defeating Gibson and Moss in the doubles.

The lower portion of the tennis team came to the rescue and were responsible for the 4-3 victory over Western State Frosh. Quite a dramatic element entered this match. The score was 3-3, with one doubles match left. Burke and Wildenburg lost the first set, 4-6, but came back strong to win, 4-6, 12-10, 6-3.

Battle Creek had little difficulty in defeating Albion for the second time, 6-1, losing only one single match. E. Heald, Wildenburg, Burke and Grantham won in straight sets. Shoop, who had been changed to No. 2 man, scored the only point for Albion by defeating H. Heald, 6-2, 6-2. The Bobcats easily won both doubles matches.

The Bobcats next journeyed to Adrian, where they obtained an easy 5-0 victory.

Herman Heald, playing No. 1 man, defeated Benson in love sets. Burke and Bennett won in straight sets over their opponents. E. Kaye, playing for the first time, and Bennett made a clean sweep of the match, winning in three sets, 4-6, 6-2, 6-1.

As this copy goes to press, the spring tournament is in progress. The winner of this tournament will be awarded the Kaler tennis shield. Eugene Heald, Herman Heald or Robert Wildenburg is expected to win this trophy. However, there are many other men striving for this award. Burke and Grantham are also considered strong contenders. The shield was won in 1928 by Collins Granger, in 1929 by Clyde Miller, in 1930 by Eugene Heald, and last year by Herman Heald.

The outcome of the championship of the Michigan-Ontario conference, which was shared last year by Detroit Tech and Battle Creek, will undoubtedly result in the same manner this year, since it was impossible for Detroit Tech to give Battle Creek a date. Their inability to do this may leave Battle Creek as champions of the conference.

Kimball, Squier, Captain Forsyth, Kellogg.
Hamilton, Roth, Stewart, Coach Vindal.

SWIMMING • • •

The Michigan-Ontario swimming meet was held at the Union pool, April 23. Coach Vindal's aquatic proteges lost by the narrow margin of one point to General Motors Tech, of Flint. The final standing was: General Motors, 44; Battle Creek, 43; Adrian, 1.

Battle Creek took an early lead by winning the 160-yard relay. This lead was maintained until the 200-yard free style, at which time General Motors took a three-point lead. Battle Creek won the 120-yard medley relay, but it was not sufficient to win the meet.

First places for Battle Creek were won by Hamilton, back stroke; Kellogg, breast stroke; Dick, 100-yard free style, and Stewart, diving. The relay team was composed of Captain Forsyth, Dick, Giddings and Kellogg.

Failure of other conference teams to appear and the large number of entrants by General Motors were the deciding factors of the meet. at Battle Creek with a regular schedule. The golf team, which was com-

The year 1932 marks the beginning of an intercollegiate golf team at Battle Creek with a regular schedule. The golf team, which is composed of Wayne Forsyth, Ed Kaye, Lear Kaye, Parker Briggs and Harold Johnson, has had tough going this year, winning only two matches and losing four. This team will be intact next year and should make a very good showing.

Battle Creek met Grand Rapids, April 15, on the Marywood links in the opening game of the season. Wayne Forsyth, Marywood champion, saved the Bobcats from a whitewash by scoring ½ point. The final score was 11½-½.

Two weeks later we again met the enemy, "and we were theirs." Valparaiso had little difficulty winning, 11½-6½.

Battle Creek scored its first victory of the season May 5 by defeating Albion, 9-3, on the Albion course. Forsyth, Ed Kaye and Lear Kaye each collected three points.

The following Wednesday Albion turned the tables and defeated the Bobcat team, 9-3. The match was played in the rain, causing both teams considerable trouble.

Valparaiso scored their second victory over the Bobcat team by handing them an 8½-5½ spanking on their own links.

The local golfers had little trouble winning the only conference match scheduled, blanking Adrian, 12-0.

There are two matches still to be played. Victory in both these meets would balance the won and lost column, and the Battle Creek golfers are out after that mark.

HOCKEY • • •

Hockey was the major fall sport sponsored by the Women's Athletic Association. Each team consisted of eight P.E.'s and three H.E.'s or L.A. students.

The hockey season opened on Saturday morning, October 24, with a game between the Imps and the Vikings, the latter winning by 3-0.

The following week the Seniors played the Sophomores. Each team showed some good hard playing, but neither group could connect well enough to get the ball between the goal posts. The Juniors tied the Freshmen with a no-score game on the same day.

The Freshmen lost to the Seniors 3-0 on the next Saturday, while the Sophomores beat the Juniors 1-0.

The war was fought all over again on Armistice Day, when the Sophs defeated the Seniors 2-1. The Frosh took a 4-1 defeat from the Juniors.

The Seniors won another victory when they played the Juniors, the score being 3-0.

After a tough battle with the Freshmen, which they won by 4-1, the Sophomores became the intramural champions for the year.

The Sophomores' record was not marred by a single score against them during the whole season.

Marjorie Healey, whose fearlessness permitted no goals to be made, was captain of the winning team. Everybody used a great deal of intelligence in passwork and shooting for the goal. No one was playing for personal glory, but all did their best for the good of the team.

BASKETBALL

Something new was tried this year in the women's basketball tournament. As the association is now open to all the women of Battle Creek College, the teams were made up of girls from every school. A limit was placed on the number of Physical Education girls, allowing not more than four of the players of each team to be from the Physical Education School. The other two players were from the other schools, either Home Economics, Liberal Arts, or Nursing. Each class had two teams in the tournament. This brought out approximately 16 girls from each class, and because of the greater number of players, interest was greatly increased over other years. In all, there were 74 girls participating, just for the recreation and value of the game, nor for an award of a cup or sweater to the winners. All the games were played at the Sanitarium Union, each team playing seven games. The eight teams were the Stags and Seniors, Indians and Juniors, Roosters and Sophomores, Bulldogs and Freshmen.

TENNIS • • •

Any girl in the college is eligible to enter the spring tennis tournament. This year there are sixty-four people signed up for singles and fifteen people for doubles. The mixed doubles are as yet unscheduled.

Last year Betty Brocker and Gertrude Brouwer were the doubles champions and Betty Brocker was also the winner in the singles.

The tennis tournament will be played too late in the season to be included in this book.

Bucklin, Holmes, Rice, Criley, Curtis, Murray.

Bowling

The only minor winter sport sponsored this year by the Women's Athletic Association was bowling. The tournament was held during April at the Sanitarium Union, each class being represented by one team. The teams were made up of two girls from the Physical Education School and one girl from either the School of Home Economics or Liberal Arts. They played three games each and the Juniors, having the highest total score, were the winners.

Baseball • • •

According to the new ruling of the Women's Athletic Association, each baseball team consisted of two Home Economics or Liberal Arts students and seven Physical Education majors. Each class had one team. Mickey Cassell was captain of the Seniors; Lydabelle Beanblossom, captain of the Juniors; Annabelle Taylor, captain of the Sophomores, and Pete Bucklin, captain of the Freshmen.

The Juniors emerged as champions, having won two games and lost one.

The baseball tournament was successful, considering the irregularity of the schedules, due to conflicting activities.

SWIMMING

In the midst of the Neptunian splendor of the Union pool, the Senior class splashed their way to the spring swimming championship of B. C. C. scoring 165 against the Sophomores' 136, the Freshmen's 123, and the fourth place Juniors with 81.

The graduates-to-be captured four firsts out of a possible seven, one second place and one fourth. The Sophomores pressed the winners with consistent second and third places, taking but one first. The Juniors were only able to capture three third places and one fourth. Ellen Newman and Louise Laine, of the Senior squad, were outstanding in the diving events.

The discovery of land by Columbus and his return to Spain were pantomimed very cleverly in the Seniors' stunt, while the Freshmen caused an uproar by dramatizing the evolution of the bathing suit.

Camp Pottowatomie

June 1936.

Kellogg Hall was overflowing with alumnae. The Time had come for the keeping of the tryst agreed upon back in 1931. As is usual on such occasions, the first hour was a confused uproar. Each newcomer was greeted with shrieks of hilarious joy. The Tower of Babel personified!

After the banquet, a comparative peace and security prevailed, but not for long. Once again the tide broke with the innocent query: "Do you remember when——?"

Remember when the launch pulled up to the dock for the first time? And how perfectly thrilled we were at the thoughts of spending three whole weeks together at camp?

And weren't we mystified at the command to bring flashlight and blanket to the dock that night? First impressions are always best—at least they are often best remembered. Anywhy, none of us had forgotten how we paddled up the lake in the moonlight, and then drifted back under the star-lit sky—singing, oh so softly. That was a beautiful memory.

The next night we met around the council ring. Junior Campers were divided into Imps or Vikings! Es Rice was made helmsman of the Vikings for a second time, and Bern Lehman became chief agitator of the Imps. Then, becoming sufficiently sick on toasted marshmallows, we trailed off to bed.

And who, do you suppose, conceived the too brilliant idea of a moonlight dip! All just because certain individuals thought that Lina's sounding of taps was a signal for general cat-calls, and a certain other individual thought to the contrary!

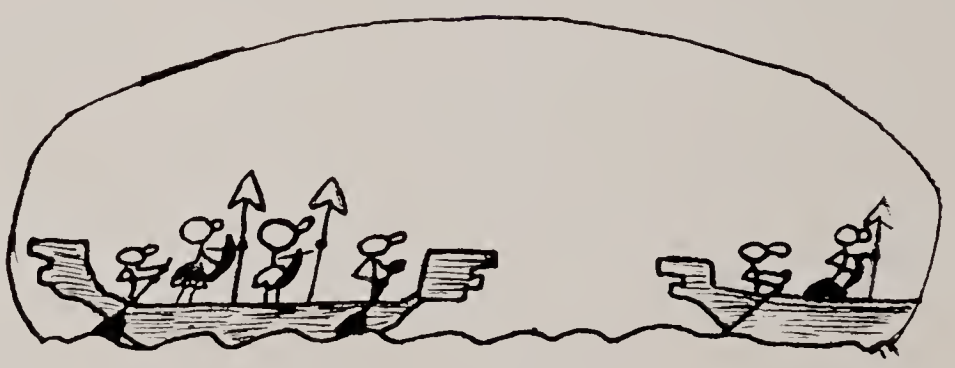
Morning dips! There ought to be a moratorium declared on such things! Besides, it would have been a real economy in those times of depression, as anyone knows what ravenous appetites we acquired thereby.

And then came the storm. That's not a mere literary phrase, either—it rained torrents. Miss Andersen and Miss Harding, clad in slickers, dashed from cabin to cabin, closing windows and shifting cots out of puddles. And with the dawn came a general sneezing and sniffling. Immediately Cabin II became the hospital, and eight protesting campers were packed off by themselves. With that, the fun began! From then on 'twas a case of "no gargle—no breakfast!" And Miss Andersen was right there to count noses (or throats), too. Who said "water"? Why, we drank so much that Clarice was inspired to the extent of composing a song in commemoration. 'Member?

Oh, yes. Bernsey was quite a composer, too. F' instance: "There were three in the bed and the middle one said, 'Roll over, roll over!'——" Speaking of Miss Behrensmeyer, remember that canoe trip we took up "Lovers Lane" in search of the beauties of nature? And how her canoe got stuck in the mud so that we had to form a "chain gang" and pull it out?

Then one day we visited the Kellogg bird sanctuary. Not, however, 'till we'd wandered all over a pretentious estate emphatically marked "private," and hiked at least a mile in the wrong direction in our efforts to find the place. Once there, Shoey promptly smashed her finger in the gate, and had to be rushed to town. Well, after the guide made several geese fly for our special benefit, and after we'd pilfered sufficient peacock feathers to establish a modest millinery, we traipsed back to the launch—and home! Wasn't it nice that the campcraft class needed experience in building fires and getting supper ready for that hungry bunch?

Stunt night honors went to the Imps, but the Vikings were consoled by the winning of the song contest as judged by our special guest, Miss Hoppough. And who will ever forget the look of pained surprise on the faces of the Imps when the Vikings rendered their musical gem, "Just One More Pound"!



The Imps felt the urge to act as hostesses, so invited their friendly rivals to a big time party. After a personally conducted tour from the porch of the lodge to the inside by Peg Dodd, fudge, popcorn, games and dancing formed the attractions of the evening.

And didn't it seem rather—well—coincidental that so many nails were stepped on, when a visit to the doctor was practically the only excuse by which one could get into town?

Remember that day we had chocolate pudding for dessert? That was when Martha Nowak, Woodie, Mickey and Annette took over the reins for a day. And Martha made out the menus!

Bean holes! Now that's something to meditate on at length. After a weary day's toil, the Imps' beans were adjudged best by Mrs. Cranwell, and she surely ought to know a good bean when she eats it! That night we had a "buffet" supper at the council ring in celebration of our new rustic benches, provided by the Administration class. The campfire was no more lighted than Miss Andersen desired us to scatter it. We were further amazed at her request that Es and Bern do a little excavation work in the middle of the ring. Baked potatoes! And who will forget that last hidden treasure deep down in the new permanent bean hole!

Didn't the days simply fly? Remember how two Imps persuaded their fire to burn the string first, and thus won the fire-building contest? And the nights came all too soon, bringing with them the inevitable fruit crackers and apples.

Remember when we were simply fainting with hunger one morning, and Miss Andersen stoicly refused to be moved by our tearful pleas to open the store, and how Behrnsy and Miss Garvin came to the rescue with some pitchers of hot savita broth?

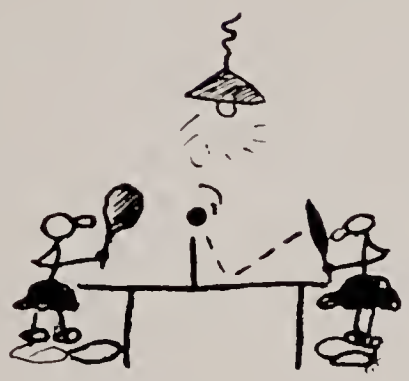
One day we embarked in our war canoes and followed the Marathon swimmers to the Brownie dock. And that brings to mind Senior skip day. While the Juniors were busy elsewhere, the Seniors slipped quietly away in the canoes, with Miss Harding. It wasn't till noon that they were actually missed — and then what plans formulated! Under the gallant leadership of Behrnsy, and fortified by gum and bathing suits, the Juniors manned a war canoe and set off in hot pursuit. Enroute, several cases of acute sunburn were acquired and a dainty little lyric was dedicated to the still missing Seniors. After discovering their hide-out, the Juniors paddled back and were nearly capsized. Such a harrowing experience dampened their ardor none at all. However, they immediately engaged in making "pie" beds and tying the Seniors' pajamas in the tree tops to flaunt in the breeze. Incidentally, 'twas many a Senior that slept "as was" that night! When the Seniors returned from their wanderings, they serenaded the sleeping camp with melodious song—but were rewarded with silence. They were not long in discovering the cause for such a phenomenon—for after a short struggle with the bedclothes, they heard a smothered giggle, another, another, and then an uproar!



Ping pong tournaments, Miss Andersen's birthday cake, mail, stealthy midnight conferences of doubtful nature, Saturday clean-ups, Imp day, Viking day, classes, meal times, social hours, sings, war canoe parties—all filled the days to the full. Labor Day, when half the camp went places, the other half was consoled at the council fire by fudge, a Vic (remember "Mood Indigo"?) and fortune telling as rendered by Miss Harding. Visitors' Day. Then the canoe and swimming meet. And the climax of it all—the war canoe race, won by the Vikings. Remember how nervous we were?

And the banquet—remember how——— Remember? But how could we forget!

POTTAWOTTAMIE CAMP FIRE SONG

The fire is low,
The embers gleam,
And we are here at the camp of our dreams,
For both the Imps and Vikings, too,
Have plenty of things that they can do
Around the lake in our canoe
We hike and swim till day is through.
Pottawottamie's traditions dear
Will hold our hearts for many a year.

VIKING SONG

We're the Viking Crew of Pottawottamie,
We sail the high and mighty sea,
We conquer the Imps wher-er they be,
For that's the way of the Vikings.
We show the Imps who we are,
What we do, how we do,
We send them flying o'er the sea,
For that's the way of the Viking Crew.
Up with your daggers and swing to the right,
Fight these Imps for all your might.
Rip the canvas, put them to fight,
For that's the way with the Vikings.

IMP SONG

We are the Imps of Pottawottamie,
Down with the Vikings,
To the bottom of the sea.
They have a jolly cox-swain,
But they don't know how to Vik—
Their end is now in sight.

The Imps, the Imps, the mighty Imps,
The Imps, the Imps, the mighty Imps,
The Imps, the Imps, the mighty Imps,
Of Pottawottamie.

FEATURES

Representative Students

In accordance with a tradition of the campus, the following Seniors have been chosen by the entire student body as being those who are most representative of Battle Creek College standards and who have been of the greatest service to the school as under graduates.

General co-operation, adaptability, and strength of character make these people not only representative of their Alma Mater but of the new generation.

The Faculty Reception

The social parlors of John Harvey Kellogg Hall on the evening of September 26, 1931, were the scene of the formal faculty reception given for the entire student body of the college.

The purpose of the reception, which was to establish acquaintances between the two groups, was well accomplished, since there were about two hundred in attendance, the students being mostly freshmen. This was the first all-school social event of the year, and came as a termination to Freshman Week.

THE E. E. K. FAIR • • •

"Heigh-ho! Come to the fair!"—and that is what everybody did on the evening of November 6. On that night dignity was left at home and hilarity reigned. The Recreation Hall could hardly be recognized with its subdivisions for side shows, animal exhibits, fortune tellers, the night club, lotto tables, and the big raffle.

Miriam Kagas was the general chairman, and what Mim didn't plan for that fair isn't worth mentioning.

Sam, the only purple rooster in captivity, crowed his stuff in the barn yard along beside Dr. West's goat.

The strong man astounded the crowd by tying a gas pipe in a knot, while bare-back riders and wild animals also attracted much attention in the side show.

And scandal of scandals! When Constable Danbury raided the Yellow Cat cabaret, who should ride out in the patrol wagon but Dr. Voelker! After due argument, he was released on bail of five cents.

There isn't room here to begin to tell how much fun everybody had, for this was one of the best attended events of the whole school year.

Horowitz Concert

Perhaps the greatest undertaking of any student body of Battle Creek College was accomplished this year by the Student Government Association and the Senior Class, when they presented to the people of Battle Creek and nearby cities one of the greatest of contemporary artists, Vladimir Horowitz.

The sale of tickets was most diligently promoted and many of the Seniors spent valuable days in making talks and placing advertising material in nearby territory. A house-to-house campaign to sell tickets netted somewhat unsatisfactory results, and it was necessary to obtain patronages from a few business men from town to insure the ability to meet the guarantee demanded.

However, on that evening in February when Horowitz walked on the stage at Battle Creek College Auditorium, not a single seat in the balcony and only a few on the main floor were unsold.

Miss Hoppough and Dr. Koten gave their valuable coöperation as consultants to the students for this project.

The contacts made by the students with the business men, society leaders and music lovers of Battle Creek were a very good means of arousing the interest of the townspeople in Battle Creek College.

Mr. Horowitz was very, very well received by his audience, and caused what we consider the biggest sensation of the year.

He played the following program:

NATIVITY • • •

On the evening of December 15, "Nativity," the annual Christmas pageant given by the Physical Education majors, under the direction of Miss Jessie B. Cameron, was presented in the auditorium of the college library.

The opening scene of the pageant was an unusual interpretation by the Senior Physical Education students of the People of Darkness, a primitive folk who are groping blindly and aimlessly in the dark of their own ignorance, searching for the light of truth.

Next we find that out of an age whose people sensed the nearness of a new hope, the Good Shepherds come to kindle a belief in the nearing realization which is prophecied by the coming of the Heavenly Hosts and Blessed Spirits.

A most beautiful and impressive scene is given by the Dancing Club group with Miss Cameron as the Medonna. The spirits seek a divine revelation and learn from a heavenly messenger that in the Madonna their hopes are realized. In her presence the candles are lighted, symbolizing the preparation of Heaven. She becomes aware of her divine significance and is invested with the gifts of Heaven and given garlands and gifts by a joyful multitude of peasant folk and little children.

The final scene depicts the Christ Child. Out of the night come peasant, shepherd, king and child, proclaiming Him in song and dance to conclude the pageant in a most unusual and gratifying manner.

The cast was ably assisted by the class in Art and Design, under the proficient direction of Miss Alyne Danbury, and the Men's Glee Club, under the direction of Luther S. West.

Senior Formal • • •

Over forty couples attended the Senior formal dinner-dance at the Athlestan Club, February 17.

Dinner was served at 6:30 p. m. and Roland Burt presided as master of ceremonies. During the dinner, Marjorie Hall and Ilah Case gave entertaining readings and speeches were demanded from the faculty members present. While the banquet room was being prepared for dancing, the assemblage went up to the recreation room and amused themselves with bridge.

Fischer's orchestra from Kalamazoo provided the music for dancing, which began at 9:00 o'clock and ended sharply at 12:00.

Chaperones for the evening were Mr. Sherman Willson and Dr. and Mrs. Irvin A. Koten.

THE COLLEGIATE VOGUE

The traditional Collegiate Vogue was sponsored this year by the Women's Athletic Association for all women in the college. A cleverly arranged Dutch garden formed the scene in the Recreation Hall for this big event on the evening of April 16. Miss Danbury assisted the decorating committee in planning and placing this unusual background.

The beautiful formals of the ladies and their well-groomed escorts in tuxedos added much to the gaiety of the occasion.

The Vogue is one of the older traditions on the campus, and many alumnae return for this event.

Miss Andersen and Mrs. Howland acted as judges and made the following selections: Libby Matson and Catherine Tidd, best looking couple; Marjorie Hall and Alumna Alice Armstrong, best dancers.

Julia Oviatt, W.A.A. president, and Lillian Ball led the grand march.

The M. A. A. Banquet • • •

Practically all of the men in the college turned out this year for the annual spring banquet of the Men's Athletic Association on May 12. This year the men chose the Recreation Room for their banquet hall, where there was plenty of elbow room and lots of atmosphere.

Several local business men were guests of the M. A. A. for the occasion.

Dean Birkbect acted as toastmaster for the evening and Coach James Crowley, of Michigan State College, was the main speaker. He chose "Friendship" as his subject. Mr. Paul Rhemus discussed the relation between Battle Creek High School and the college.

Gordon Heald's orchestra furnished peppy music during the meal. The preliminary after-dinner program included a series of songs by the Men's Glee Club and several marimba selections by Willard Shadel, of Berrien Springs.

The presentation of athletic awards was one of the major events of the evening.

Dave Neufeldt presented letters to the following Junior Varsity men: Captain Lugers, O'Connell, Grantham, Forsyth, Heald, Huber, Cook and Johnson.

Coach Vindal gave out the swimming awards to Stewart, Kellogg, Forsyth, Dick, Hamilton, Roth, Kimball and Giddings.

Captain John Kelleher received the Kaler trophy for the second year in succession for being the best basketball player. Sweaters were awarded to Kelleher, Morrison, L. Kaye, E. Kaye and Manager Cook.

Coach Vindal and Dave Neufeldt in turn received small gold basketballs from the men in appreciation of their excellent coöperation throughout the year.

The History of Battle Creek College • • •

By Myra Scupholm

LOOKING into the future of Battle Creek College affords such fascinating speculation that we seldom turn our thoughts back to consider that which has gone before. A study of the history and accomplishments of this institution enhances our dreams for its future in substantiating our belief in the dynamic, progressive character of the school.

At least a portion of the present campus has served in that capacity for a great many years. Even before the various schools of which Battle Creek College was composed began to make their appearance, the Old College building had been the home of two different colleges. The first, a Seventh Day Adventist institution, established in the early 1870's, later moved to Berrien Springs, where it is still located. The second, called the American Medical Missionary College, was established in 1898, and founded by Dr. John Harvey Kellogg, was finally given to the University of Illinois in 1910 and incorporated into that institution. A continuation of the chemistry department which was a part of the Medical Missionary College is found in our college today.

The real history of the present Battle Creek College begins in 1884, with the origin of the School of Nursing. In the fall of that year, the first regular two-year course was organized under the name "Battle Creek Training School for Nurses" and in November 1886 the members of its first class were granted their diplomas. There were seven members in this class, one of whom was Mrs. Mary Staines Foy, present Dean of the School of Nursing.

Men, at that time, were admitted as student nurses, but at the time of the entrance of the United States into the World War all of the men nurses were called for service, and since then no men have been admitted to the school. Many of the men afterwards took up medicine. Among the graduates of this school are several who are well known to the students now: Dr. Paul Roth, Dr. Stewart, Dr. Mortensen, and Dr. Jeffry.

Uniforms, in the early history of the nursing school, were brown and white. One of the prominent organizations was the Christian Help Bond. The members had Battle Creek divided into districts and a group of nurses was assigned to each to help the members of that district to the best of their ability. It was stated in a Plastic Page of 1926 that there had been no training school in the United States graduate as many nurses up to that time as the Battle Creek College School of Nursing. It further stated that "the unique combination of being a missionary training school and of having the hydrotherapy course has given the school national renown, and it is recognized as one of the best training schools in America.

In 1909 the School of Physical Education was founded, with twelve students, both men and women. There were two winter and two summer terms, students attending the whole year. Later this was changed to two winter and three summer terms. The first classes were held under a tent on the lawn south of the main building.

In 1919 the curriculum was enlarged and a new plan developed, making it a straight two-year course with three weeks of summer camp, and the following year a six-weeks camp was arranged for, to be divided into three week periods for two summers each.

In 1921 the curriculum was again enlarged and the course lengthened to three years. Eighty students were enrolled, representing thirty states. In January of that year the Sanitarium Board voted, at the request of the students and alumni, to change the name from the Normal School of Physical Education to the Kellogg School of Physical Education.

In 1923 other changes in the curriculum were made, making possible a four-year course leading to a Bachelor of Science degree.

Men were in attendance at the N. S. P. E. until 1917, when they joined the ambulance corps. In fact, the dancing instructor in 1916 was a man. The students all lived in dormitories, which were located on Howland Avenue. It is recorded that the men's rules were lenient, while the girls' were strict, so that "the boys walked out of the doors . . . girls out of the windows." There was no dining room for students.

One of the traditions at that time was the annual Pig-Tail Day, on which every girl was obliged to wear her hair in a long braid. There were many social events in those days, and there even existed a social sorority. Phi Alpha Delta was organized in 1917 to "make fools out of freaks, dances out of drudgery, butterflies out of book worms." Their chief aim was: "Eat, drink, and be merry, for tomorrow grades may be our finish." Their motto: "Sassafras, nuts, lobsters, and junk." There were also various sectional clubs, such as the Dixie Club, New York, and Pennsylvania.

The men produced some athletic teams of considerable note. They played such schools as Albion, Olivet, and the University of Detroit in different sports.

The School of Home Economics was organized in 1906 under the name of Battle Creek Sanitarium School of Health and Home Economics. This organization was effected as a result of a demand from patients and guests at the Sanitarium for instruction in food preparation and related subjects. The first term was a summer course, with an enrollment of seven pupils. In the fall of 1906 a one-year course for matrons and housekeepers was established. The first class of eleven graduated in June, 1907; most of these graduates being employed by the Sanitarium. The work in 1907 was extended to include a two-year course for lecturers and teachers. An arrangement with the American Medical Missionary College provided for the teaching of the science courses by the medical college faculty. An increasing demand for trained dietitians and other institutional workers resulted, in 1909, in the organization of a two-year course for dietitians and lecturers. In 1910, after the removal of the medical college to Chicago, all the required subjects were taught under the direction of the Home Economics faculty. The teachers' training course, giving the Michigan State Teachers' Certificate, was introduced in 1919. This was a two-year course, preparing its graduates to teach Home Economics subjects in elementary or high schools.

During the first few years of existence the laboratory classes were held in White Cottage, then in the main building of the Sanitarium, but were later transferred to North Lodge. With the erection of the new College Library building in 1930, North Lodge was moved to Manchester Street, next to the old Lewis Cottage. North Lodge at the present time houses the Administration, Clothing and Foods Laboratories and offices for the Home Economics faculty.

In the fall of 1923, the School of Home Economics affiliated with the School of Nursing and Kellogg School of Physical Education in the formation of Battle Creek College. The two-year course for dietitians was continued until 1928-29, but as admission for membership in the American Dietetic Association was based on the Bachelor of Science degree, it was necessary for the School of Home Economics to raise its standards accordingly. The first Bachelor of Science degrees in Home Economics were given in 1924.

In the early days before the School of Home Economics was incorporated in Battle Creek College there were two Home Economics clubs, the S. K. K. and a sorority which was nationalized in the spring of 1923 as Sigma Iota Chi. The Delta chapter, which is still existing among the alumnae, maintains a loan fund for Senior Home Economics students and has given a great deal of service in that capacity.

At the present time, with an enrollment of approximately 125 students, the School of Home Economics offers a four-year course in food and nutrition, which leads to a B.S. degree, preparing its graduates to hold positions as administrative and medical dietitians; a Michigan State Teachers' Certificate, enabling them to teach Home Economics in junior or senior high schools; and a two-year course in Institutional Administration offered for students over twenty-five years of age who have had previous professional or business experience. While these graduates are not fitted for hospital work, it prepares them for other administrative positions in the Home Economics field.

Approximately 882 students have graduated from the School of Home Economics in the twenty-five years of its existence. Many of its graduates volunteered for service during the World War. A survey of the field of work entered by these graduates shows at the present time that about 50 per cent are employed as hospital dietitians, including those in federal, state, municipal, and private hospitals; 20 per cent are holding teaching positions; 15 per cent are cafeteria managers, and 15 per cent are engaged in other types of work, including college positions as research workers, consulting dietitians, commercial dietitians (lecturing and demonstrating), and social service workers.

Not only are Home Economics graduates serving in all sections of the United States, but also in other countries, including Japan, Newfoundland, Peru, Palestine, the Philippines, and Panama. The success of these graduates is in no small part due to the inspiring leadership of Miss Lenna F. Cooper, who for twenty-five years was Dean of the School of Home Economics.

In 1922 the first joint commencement of the three schools was held. In March of that year Dr. Kellogg announced that the ambition of his life was to be realized; that the various schools should be combined as Battle Creek College. In that fall the new college opened, with the privilege of granting the Bachelor of Science degree to students completing the four-year program. The first students, eighteen in number, received their degrees the following June.

Kellogg Hall was turned over to the Race Betterment Foundation about 1923. The Sanitarium rented part of the building, and the students were allowed to use the rest. The rental was finally discontinued and the building is now used almost exclusively as a woman's dormitory.

The figure of Hygiea was chosen as the colege seal in 1923, as representing the ideals of all the various schools of which Battle Creek College was composed.

The College Dining Club opened a common dining hall in October, 1923. This aided in bringing the different schools closer together.

Dr. Kellogg had been the nominal president of the college up to this time, when Dr. Paul F. Voelker became the active president in September, 1925. In that year the Liberal Arts School was added to the college, and once again the institution became co-educational. The term "Co-ed," however, was applied to the men, and it was believed this would continue to be a tradition. There were about twenty-five men enrolled and about twenty-five turned out for basketball the first year.

Dr. Linda Gage Roth was the first Dean of Women of the college; Dr. William E. Payne, the first Dean of Men; and Professor Benjamin L. Birkbeck, the first Dean of the college.

In December, 1925, graduate work was offered in the college, with Dr. West as head of the committee in charge.

News was received on March 30, 1926, that we were accepted by the North Central Association of Accredited Schools and Colleges. In the same year Dr. Kellogg presented the biology preserve to the college. This preserve, located around Brigham Lake, to the east of Battle Creek, has been increased by two additional purchases. It contains, at present, about 800 acres. Dr. Luther S. West, head of the biology department, has since been the director of the preserve.

The Sanitarium Union Building was opened in May, 1927, with all its facilities open to all college students. This building was operated on a coöperative basis between the Sanitarium and the college.

A Music School was organized in 1927 with the hope that it would be self supporting. It has been temporarily discontinued since the fall of 1931.

Land was bought from the corner of Washington to the location of Voelker Hall on Manchester Street to make the campus continuous with that on which the old college building is located. Several cottages which came with it were moved to make room for the new library. Turner Cottage, used for various club rooms; Voelker Hall, the men's dormitory; North Lodge, containing Home Economics laboratories, and the building which was used for the Music School were some of these. The cornerstone of the new library building was laid in October, 1929, and in October, 1930, the building was dedicated. In the spring of 1932 the old college building and the city block on which it stands was presented to the college by the Race Betterment Foundation, of which Dr. Kellogg is the chief sponsor.

In 1926 the Plastic Page was made a weekly paper instead of a monthly. This was also the first year in which the tennis team engaged in intercollegiate matches. There was a football team that year, organized on a very unique basis, under Coach Julian, with specific regulations pertaining to biologic living. They won a game with Assumption College, 27-0, this being the only victory of the season. Football was found to be unsuccessful in Battle Creek College and was discontinued the next year.

Miss Genevieve Caton, a member of the Physical Education School, gained national recognition for the college that year by winning the national championship for discus throwing.

Various organizations and institutions in the different schools appeared as the years went by, and many of them have been continued until the present day.

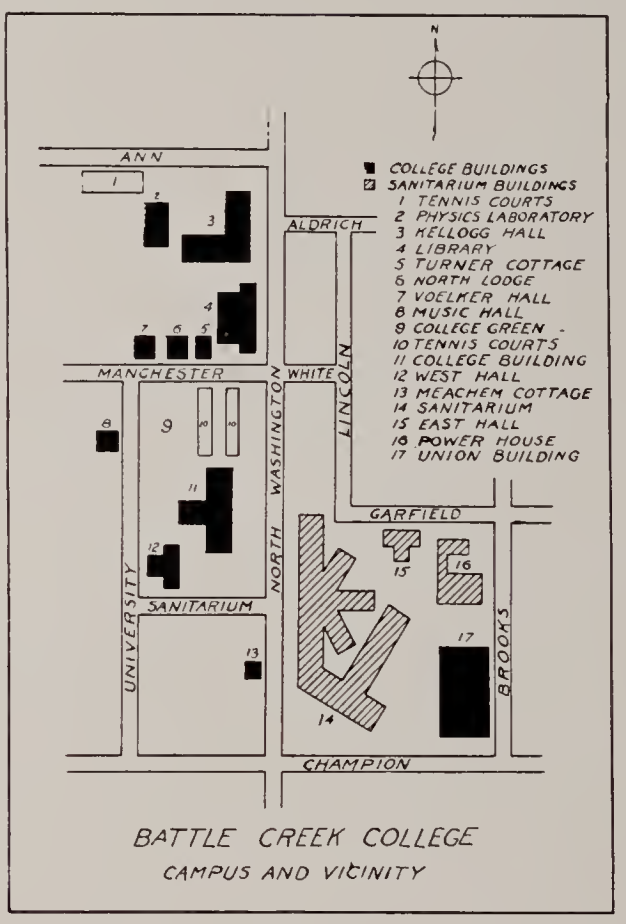
Sigma Sigma Psi, honorary society in the Physical Education School, was first instituted in 1916. The Sit 'n' Sit 'n' Sigh made its first appearance at the same time.

The Dancing Club was organized in 1923 by Miss Jessie Cameron.

All the Seniors of the first class to receive degrees were awakened at 3:30 A. M. on May 1, 1924, by Freshman serenaders, and they later discovered May baskets hanging on their door knobs. These were placed there by the Juniors. Thus the May Day tradition was originated.

The Women's Athletic Association was admitted to the national organization in the early part of 1925.

The first copy of the school paper appeared in March of that year, with the caption, "Name It." The April issue was called the Plastic Page.



BATTLE CREEK COLLEGE
CAMPUS AND VICINITY

A dramatic club was formed in the Physical Education School, and as one of its first activities gave an all-school party called "The Collegiate Vogue." This party has been sponsored each year since by some campus organization or the Physical Education School. The Dramatic Club was reorganized in 1927 as the Campus Players.

The Volitan Club, the first swimming club of the college, was organized in 1925. Its name was derived from the Flying Fish.

The Home Economics Club held its first meeting in February of the same year, and in 1926 became part of the American Home Economics Association. This club was later reorganized as the Ella Eaton Kellogg Club in 1928. Helen Feuerstein was the first president.

The history recorded here is a mere beginning of the story of Battle Creek College. Each year will add a few more paragraphs to the narrative. Everybody is looking forward with a great deal of interest, to watching the college expand.

With the ideals that this college upholds, great things will be accomplished.

Do men admire natural color ?
JUST ASK ONE!

MAN

Once upon a time I thought I understood man and could marry any one of them with one hand and my eyes shut. But, alas, I have discovered: If you flatter a man, it frightens him to death; if you permit him to make love to you, he gets tired of you after a while; and if you don't, he gets offended in the beginning.

If you agree with him in everything, you soon cease to interest him, and if you don't agree with him in everything, you cease to charm him.

If you don't believe all he tells you, he thinks you are a cynic, and if you do, he thinks you are a fool.

If you wear gay colors, rouge and startling hats, he hesitates to take you out, and if you wear a little brown toque and a tailored suit, he takes you out and gazes all the evening at some other woman in gay colors.

If you are jealous of him, he can't endure you, and if you are not, he can't understand you. If you join in his gaieties and approve of his smoking and drinking, he vows that you are leading him to the devil, and if you disapprove of his gaities and urge him to give up smoking and drinking, he swears that you are interfering with his good times.

If you are affectionate, he soon tires of your kisses and seeks consolation in some other woman's. If you are a sweet, old-fashioned, clinging vine, he doubts that you have any brains, and if you are modern, advanced and independent, he doubts that you have a heart.

If you are cute or boyish, he longs for a soul-mate; if you are brilliant and intelectual, he longs for a playmate.

If you are temperamental and poetic, he longs for a helpmate, and all the time he is falling in love with you, he is trying to remodel you into what you are not, never were, and never will be.

CAULDRONS COME AND CAULDRONS GO ——

But every one has that seemingly necessary but pestiferous appendage entitled "ADVERTISING MANAGER." He it is who writes innumerable letters, makes many calls and eventually, after repeated pleas, coaxes the copy (and finally, we hope, the check) from the reluctant user of space.

All of which has nothing to do with this as an advertisement for the CAMPUS BOOK STORE. I really can't tell you anything new about the BOOK STORE which will do either of us any good at this time of year; you already know the best and worst, as your opinion may be. So here goes with congratulations for the "grads" of '32 — and here's hoping to see the rest of you back again next fall. Best wishes and good luck until then!

Sincerely, "Red"

for the Campus Book Store.
